Requirements: - PSP firmware 1.60. It works perfectly with 1.60. - Internet connection. - Videocamera. It's more fun to stream your own flicks. I had troubles with swf/flv so I'm trying to include at least at a handful of the usually supported extensions. Download link:

I need something that allows me to stream videos live from my PC or the internet straight to my PSP. I tried PiMPStreamer Crack Free Download and it did not work for me. I was hoping someone could help me out. I am also looking for a PPSSPP (Playstation Portable Simulator) for PS3. I have tried

- It uses the power of the hosting PC - no need for any muxing, converting for streaming you can just watch the output
- No additional software - wmv3+ support - starts in a few seconds and needs only as low CPU load as it's streamed (like 30%) - No need for any external stuff - Install the ini-files into the flvplayer directory of psp/wii (F:/>share>psp>apps>pimpstreamer) and run by using shortcut - No muxing, converting is done by the player - Dynamic audio visualizer with color scrolling and position colors and streams
- Small and fast (less then 50k)

executable - Will output in web as well (wii/ps3) - MP3 streams even for output (in MP3, FLAC) - Will output directly to usb-drive for streaming (you choose this option from the setup) - Add to packages and never need to compile again! Note: Not all formats are supported, make sure your PC is powerful enough for streaming Note: You can setup the player to use the PC's output only (not to output the streams to the PSP). Note: There is a bug in PSP 1.42 and onwards, that causes the player's progress bar to misbehave and overlap the output stream. If you are using PSP 1.42 then upgrade first. (1.41 is NOT affected by this bug) Note:

streams created with PSP can't be loaded with the internal webbrowser. In this case use a custom webbrowser. Note: In PS3 the player is limited to streaming from a server you own. If you do not own the server then the player may also hang.
