This solution allows users to import files into a database and to retrieve files without opening them. The user enters the name of the file and the keyword(s) in the search fields, and a request is sent to a MACRO process that queries the database and, if the file exists, returns a list of files, with hyperlinks to each file (either in the database or in a remote location). The user can choose to display the contents of a file or the file itself. The
